News and appeals

Man jailed for assaulting three police officers in Chichester (image attached)

A man has been sent to jail for assaulting three police officer on two different occasions.

Daniel Joyce, 25, of no fixed address initially assaulted a police officer on April 2 in Selsey after he was arrested to prevent a breach of the peace. The officer involved suffered minor facial injuries after being punched.

Joyce was charged with assaulting an officer during duty and resisting an officer during duty and was given a four week prison sentence for assault and two weeks for resisting.

He was also sentenced on Monday, October 16 for assault by beating on a woman in South Street, Chichester, on July 2. When he was arrested, Joyce kicked out at an officer and attempted to bite another. He was sentenced to eight weeks' imprisonment for assault by beating and four weeks for both assaults on officers.

Joyce was also sentenced to a four week custodial sentence after he damaged a bus windscreen and shop front at Chichester bus station on June 21.

The sentences - eight weeks, four of four weeks and a two week sentence - will all run concurrently.

Wisborough Green man sentenced over child sex offences

A Wisborough Green man has started a four-year sentence for child sex offences, including the exchange of indecent photos with a 12-year-old girl who thought he was a member of a famous pop band.

On 3 November at Brighton Crown Court, Phillip Jackson, 38, a landscape gardener, was found guilty of inciting a child to engage in sexual activity and of possession of indecent images of children. He was sentenced to four years imprisonment and will be a registered sex offender for life.

He was also issued with a Sexual Harm Prevention Order to last indefinitely, severely restricting his access to children and computers.

In 2014 Jackson created a fake Facebook profile of a band member from 'Bars and Melody' who had become well known on 'Britain's Got Talent'.

A 12-year-old girl was drawn into thinking it was a genuine account and made contact, but the Facebook messaging soon moved to Whats App, then to Skype. Jackson sent indecent pictures of himself to her and encouraged her to send naked pictures of herself to him, which she did.

Fortunately the girl's mother spotted the on-line exchange and police were immediately informed.

When Jackson was arrested a laptop belonging to him was found to contain over 500 indecent images of children.

Detective Constable Amanda Zinyama of the West Sussex Safeguarding Investigations Unit said; "Jackson set out to entrap vulnerable young girls into degrading sexual behaviour simply for his own sexual gratification. Fortunately family intervention prevented this girl being exploited any further

"However, while there is no evidence of other offences at this time, we cannot discount the possibility that other young girls have been victims of this offending by similar means.

"Anyone who wishes to report offending of this type can contact the police at any time online or by calling 101. You can arrange to talk in confidence to experienced investigators who can also arrange access to sources of further counselling and support."

Arrest summary

Between the 15th - 22nd November more than 20 people were arrested from across the Chichester district. Offences included shoplifting, going equipped to steal, domestic assault, being wanted on warrant and driving whilst under the influence of alcohol.
